

Stockton Hughes Center Research Asks: Do You See the Invisible Hand of Government?

For Immediate Release

Wednesday, July 20, 2016

Contact: Maryjane Briant
News and Media Relations Director
Galloway, N.J. 08205
Maryjane.Briant@stockton.edu
(609) 652-

-continued from page 1-

universal entitlement or contributory systems, or because the government acts indirectly, through private intermediaries or through indirect instruments such as the tax code Carr. As the debates raging in the current presidential primaries remind us, our perceptions of whether or not we benefit from support may shape our position in the continuing debate about the proper scope of government.

The full report, The Invisible Hand of Government, is available at stockton.edu/hughescenter, along with other research and resources.

About

The William J. Gughes Center for Public Policy (stockton.edu/hughescenter) at Stockton University serves as a catalyst for research, analysis and innovative policy solutions on the economic, social and cultural issues facing New Jersey, and promotes the civic life of New Jersey through engagement, education and research. The Center is named for William J. Gughes, whose distinguished career includes service in the U.S. House of Representatives, Ambassador to Panama and as a Distinguished Visiting Professor at Stockton. The Gughes Center can be found at facebook.com/StocktonGughesCenter and can be followed on Twitter @hughescenter.

#