Galloway Township, NJ - The Stockton Aviation Research & Technology Park, an auxiliary organization of Stockton University, today assumed the lease of 58 acres in Egg Harbor Township, with plans to kick off development by the end of the year.

"The lease transfer is a significant step toward the ultimate goal of attracting more commercial, governmental and academic organizations to southern New Jersey," said Stockton Acting President Harvey Kesselman. "Stockton will be the lead agency for aviation-related educational programs and research, helping to grow the region's economy while providing academic opportunities in the fields of science, nmsed5 o(t)-636la.-2(6la r)-6(e)10.5(gneer-2(ade)10.n)10.6(r)-6(e).5(m)-6
