In its first four years, Downbeach Film Festival has honored New Jersey filmmaker, Kevin Smith; "Home Alone" and "Mystic Pizza" producer, Scott Rosenfelt; "Boardwalk Empire" actors, William Forsythe and Chris Mulkey; and a growing list of small independent filmmakers. Submissions are being reviewed for inclusion in this year's festival.

Further information regarding the Film Festival, including ticket prices and movies, will be available in the near future.

The Richard Stockton College of New Jersey took over the leadership and operations of Dante Hall Theater in 2011. An intimate 240-seat performing arts venue, Dante Hall Theater serves Atlantic City and the surrounding communities as a vital cultural center. The Theatre hosts a diverse range of professional and amateur performances attracting a wide variety of patrons. For information on Dante Hall Theater, please contact Stephanie Clineman at 609-513-8432 or Stephanie.Clineman@stockton.edu.

The Downbeach Film Festival celebrates the art form of moviemaking. They are rooted in the celebration of film and the creation of a forum where independent filmmakers can exhibit their work. For more information, visit downbeachfilmfestival.org.
