notification represents a significant accomplishment on the part of the students, , staff, and alumni of the Teacher Education undergraduate and graduate ms at Stockton," said Dr. Harvey Kesselman, provost and executive vice ent of The Richard Stockton College of New Jersey. "Given the incredible ements by so many of our graduates in the field of education, it is nice to see that tional accrediting body has awarded Stockton its highest endorsement."

outcomes, interviewing and surveying our constituencies and verifying that our programs are succeeding on every measure, TEAC has endorsed our programs with the highest possible accreditation status. We are proud to have earned this designation.”

The TEAC panel said it found that the Education program’s faculty members are deeply involved in an ongoing culture of assessment and program improvement. “The types of data used by the program to monitor program effectiveness, both for student learning and for faculty learning, were impressive,” the TEAC said in a letter.

The Teacher Education Accreditation Council, founded in 1997, is a nonprofit organization dedicated to improving academic degree programs for professional educators, those who will teach and lead in schools, pre-K through grade 12, its web site states.

As of this May, TEAC said it had accredited programs in 134 institutions of higher education.

TEAC is recognized by the U.S. Department of Education as a national accrediting agency for teacher education programs. (2011) (DC 11) C /
