

Stockton's Kramer Hall and Literacy Volunteers to Offer English Language Skills Instruction

Orientation Session for Volunteer Tutors to be Held Jan. 17 in Hammonton

For Immediate Release

Wednesday, December 14, 2016

Contact: Maryjane Briant
News and Media Relations Director
Galloway , N.J. 08205
Maryjane.Briant @stockton.edu
(609) 652-4593
stockton.edu/media

Galloway , N.J. - Stockton University's Kramer Hall has collaborated with Literacy Volunteers Association Cape-Atlantic (LVA) to offer English language skills instruction at the university's Hammonton, N.J. instructional site at no cost.

If the New Year finds you wanting to have an impact in your community, consider becoming a literacy volunteer. As the saying goes: "Give the gift of literacy; it lasts a lifetime."

An orientation session is scheduled for Tuesday, Jan. 17 where interested volunteers can stop by between 4 - 6 p.m. at Stockton's Kramer Hall, 30 Front Street in Hammonton. Please RSVP to lvakmicale@comcast.net to reserve a seat.

The orientation will give volunteers a chance to meet Katherine Micale, LVA's program director and learn about the group's mission and how volunteer training will prepare one to work with adults who want to improve their reading, writing and English language skills. Tutor training workshops consist of three-hour classes, held once a week for five weeks.

For orientation or registration information, or to help someone who is interested in receiving instruction in basic reading and writing skills, English as a second language, health literacy, financial literacy, citizenship, or workplace readiness, please call the LVA office in Pleasantville, N.J. at 609-383-3377, or visit the website, lvacapeatlantic.org