Galloway Township, NJ – Christmas Origami and gingerbread houses take center stage on Thursday, Dec. 18 at "Handmade for the Holidays" at Kramer Hall, The Richard Stockton College of New Jersey's instructional site in Hammonton, NJ.

The event at 6 p.m. is part of Hammonton's Third Thursday "Glitz, Glimmer and Holiday Shimmer." It will feature a lesson in the traditional Japanese art of paper folding to make an Origami holiday ornament. The lesson will be led by Dr. Norma Boakes, associate professor of Education at Stockton. During the semester, Dr. Boakes teaches "The Art and Math of Origami."

Gingerbread house kits also will be available to assemble and decorate at this free public event. Light refreshments will be provided.

Kramer Hall is located in downtown Hammonton at 30 Front St.
