Stockton Offers More to Older Adults / page 2

Stockton was recently selected by the American Society on Aging to participate in their MetLife MindAlert Speakers Bureau. The program will send a national expert on mind health and aging to Stockton to deliver a day-long workshop to area professionals and involve up to 25 older adults. The program is designed to train trainers to offer ongoing evidence-based cognitive vitality programs throughout the region in community centers, adult learning programs, and long-term care facilities. Details of this program will be developed over the next month.

The Older Adult Education Program is partially underwritten with U.S. Older Americans Act Funds provided by the Atlantic County Division of Intergenerational Services, by a generous donation from Harrah's Entertainment, by Stockton's Division of Academic Affairs and by public donations.
