Galloway Township, NJ- The Stockton Center on Successful Aging (SCOSA) will present a photography workshop titled “Take Better Pictures, Advanced Composition,” led by Judith Heyman. The three-hour workshop for older adults will take place Wednesday, July 25, 2012, from 1:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m., at The Noyes Museum of Art of Stockton College, located at 733 Lily Lake Road, Oceanville, Galloway Township.

Judith Heyman will take participants beyond the basic concepts of composing a good shot to share the secrets of professional photographers. She will reveal how to compose a gallery-quality image. Participants are asked to bring a camera to practice the techniques during the session and to bring a few recent photos to get tips on how to improve them.

This workshop is free to area older adults and has limited capacity requiring pre-registration. To register, please contact The Noyes Museum of Art of Stockton College at 609-652-8848 or stop by the Noyes Museum.

For more information on this workshop and other events, visit SCOSA’s website at www.stockton.edu/scosa.
