Stockton Community Volunteers for 12th Annual MLK Day of Service

“The flexible prosthetic hands are comprised of about $30 in materials but would cost about $20,000 if made commercially,” said Bob Heinrich, chief information officer. “Lowering the cost makes it possible for children to get new prosthetics as they grow.”

Stockton Community Remembers Robert Martin of Plant Management

The Stockton community is saddened by the loss of Robert Martin, who served as a senior building maintenance worker. Martin, who served the Stockton community for 10 years, passed away on Jan. 13.

In his spare time, Martin enjoyed drawing various art projects and fishing. He was also a member of St. Matthew's Baptist Church in Williamstown, N.J.

"What counts in life is not the mere fact that we have lived. It is what difference we have made to the lives of others that will determine the significance of the life we lead," said Humu Kaloko, quoting Nelson Mandela. Kaloko served as Martin's supervisor in Plant Management.

"Robert was a gentleman and a well-mannered employee," continued Kaloko. "He was a quiet and peaceful human being and he will be missed."
