The College received its first outright $1 million gift in its history. The funds will be used for scholarships to help students who are in great need of financial assistance.

The anonymous donors stressed that students facing exceptional financial hardships were to be targeted as recipients. Dr. Saatkamp said the gift would be invested by The Richard Stockton College Foundation in a permanent endowment and distributed in perpetuity to support need-based financial aid.

More than 120 riders took part and more than $14,000 was raised last Saturday at the Third Annual Legacy Fund Bike Ride at Stockton.

Cynthia James, widow of beloved G. Larry James—Stockton's former Dean and Athletic Director—gave the starting signal from Vera King Farris Drive and the riders pedaled either 14-, 32- or 62-mile courses along local scenic roadways.

"This event has grown in popularity and as a fundraiser each year," said Associate Dean Craig Stambaugh, one of the organizers.
